THE following Addreſs of the Aldermen, Common-Councilmen, Freemen, and Inhabitants of the Town of Cambridge, has been preſented to His Majeſty by the Honourable Charles Sloane Cadogan, and Soame Jenyns, Eſq; their Repreſentatives in Parliament, being introduced by the Lord of His Majeſty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Addreſs His Majeſty was pleaſed to receive very graciouſly.

To the KING's moſt Excellent Majeſty.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majeſty's dutiful Subjects, Aldermen, Common-Councilmen, Freemen, and Inhabitants of the antient and loyal Town of Cambridge, beg Leave, with all Duty and Humility, to approach the Throne, at this important Criſis, on which we do not impertinently preſume to obtrude on your Majeſty our Opinions or Advice, though for it we have numerous and great Examples to plead, but deſire only, together with many other of your Majeſty's loyal Subjects, to expreſs at this Time our ſincere Attachment to your Majeſty's Perſon and Government, our Conſciouſneſs of your Majeſty's many Royal Virtues, our utter Deteſtation of all Rebellion, Treaſon, and Faction, and our ſteady Reſolution to ſupport your Majeſty, to the utmoſt of our Power, againſt all your Enemies, whether open or concealed, both at Home and Abroad; and to aſſure your Majeſty, that we place ſuch intire Confidence in your Majeſty's known Wiſdom and Goodneſs, that we cannot entertain the leaſt Doubt that ſuch Meaſures, either of Vigour or Lenity, of Coercion or Indulgence, will be purſued, as are beſt adapted to reduce your deluded Subjects in America, now in a State of Rebellion and Anarchy, to a due Obedience to your Majeſty, and Submiſſion to the Legiſlature of Great Britain.

The following Addreſs of the Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Forfar, having been tranſmitted to the Right Honourable Lord Viſcount Weymouth, One of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, has been preſented to His Majeſty: Which Addreſs His Majeſty was pleaſed to receive very graciouſly.

To the KING's moſt Excellent Majeſty,

The humble Addreſs of the Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Forfar.

Moſt gracious Sovereign,

THE Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Forfar, filled with Sentiments of Duty to your Majeſty, beg Leave to lament the unhappy Diſputes which have ariſen between the Parent-State and thoſe Subjects whom they have always wiſhed to conſider as her Friends.

Senſible of the Freedom of every Subject of Great Britain, and grateful for the Happineſs we enjoy under your Majeſty's auſpicious Government, we ſee with Indignation thoſe inſidious Arts, by which the American Colonies have been deluded into an unlawful and unjuſt Deſire of Independency.

But while we view with Abhorrence thoſe ſeditious Individuals, who, from a violent and reſtleſs Temper, or the Impulſes of Ambition, have ſeduced their Brethren into Rebellion, we compaſſionate the unhappy People, who by partial or unjuſt Repreſentations have been involved in Scenes of Diſtreſs.

We flatter ourſelves they have already become ſenſible of their Errors, and that they will gladly embrace the earlieſt Opportunity of returning to their Duty and Allegiance.

Should they perverſely continue in Arms, however anxiouſly we may wiſh for their Friendſhip, we muſt entreat your Majeſty to adopt ſuch Meaſures as ſhall appear neceſſary to enforce a due Obedience to the Laws and Conſtitution of Great-Britain.

We beg Leave to aſſure your Majeſty, that we ſhall readily contribute, with our Lives and Fortunes, to ſuppreſs the Rebellion in your Colonies. To bring about ſo deſireable an Event is one of the moſt ardent Wiſhes of our Hearts, and is only ſecondary to our Ambition to teſtify on every Occaſion our Duty and Attachment to your Majeſty.

Signed by Order, and in Preſence of the Meeting, by Sir John Ogilvy, Baronet, Preſes, at Forfar, the 13th Day of November, One thouſand ſeven hundred and ſeventy-five Years.

John Ogilvy.

St. James's, November 28, 1775.

WEYMOUTH.

Conſtantinople, October 17. Prince Repnin, Ambaſſador from the Court of Peterſburg, arrived here on the 15th Inſtant, with his Lady and three Daughters. Yeſterday the Ambaſſador made his Publick Entry into this City with great Parade and Splendor. He was accompanied from the Frontiers, until he entered the City, by a Paſcha of two Tails; the Drugoman of the Porte was ſent to meet him three Days before his Arrival, together with the Chief Cuſtomer; the Captain of the Corps of Chiauſes being ill, and not able to attend the Prince on the Day of his Publick Entry, another Officer was ſubſtituted to Act in that Station. As a Compliment from the Vizir, between five and ſix Hundred Janiſſaries and Chiauſes, with two Colonels of the Janiſſaries, two Capigi Paſchas, the Capigilar Cheaiaſi or Maſter of the Ceremonies, and ſome other Officers, who preceded his Retinue, which conſiſted of 150 Soldiers with their Bayonets fixed, and about as many other Perſons, Officers and Gentlemen of his Suite, as likewiſe a Band of Muſick, ſixteen led Horſes richly capariſoned, and three State Coaches. The Prince entered the City on Horſeback at the Gate of Adrianople, paſſed through the outward Part of Conſtantinople near the Walls, and after making a pretty large Circuit from Daoud Paſcha, (which Place he left about Eight o'Clock in the Morning) arrived in perfect Health at Pera about Six in the Evening.

Hague, November 21. The Effects of the late Storm of the 14th Inſtant appear by Accounts from all Parts of this Province to have been much more dreadful than was at firſt apprehended. Commerce has ſuffered greatly by the many Veſſels loſt on our Coaſts, near the Texel; in the Zuyder Sea, at the Mouth of the Maeſe, and more particularly on the Sea-Coaſt of Holland, which is in many Places covered with Wrecks and Merchandize. The Violence of the North Weſt Wind, (which blew on the 14th the whole Day) had raiſed the Tide in the Morning to a very uncommon Height; and the Waters on the Ebb being prevented by the Continuance of the Storm, from returning, in the Evening were increaſed to ſuch a Degree as to occaſion Inundations in many Parts of North and South Holland, and even in the Province of Utrecht. Among the Towns partly or entirely overflowed, are thoſe of Amſterdam, Munikendam, Edam, Horn, Dort, Rotterdam, Beverwyk, Delfſhaven, and Maaſſluys. All the Diſtrict in the Neighbourhood of Heuſden was under Water, as alſo the Country bordering on the River Y between Harlem and Amſterdam, and on the oppoſite Shore of that River in North Holland, and the Country lying at the Mouth of the Maeſe near Rotterdam, particularly the Iſlands of Blankenbourg and Rooſenbourg. The Force of the Wind and Waves was ſo great, that a Ship at Amſterdam, bound to Peterſburg, was carried over two Dykes between Muiden and Amerſfort, and thrown to the Diſtance of two hundred Yards on the Land. The Dykes are damaged in many Places by this Tempeſt; but wherever there appeared any Breaches, the Inhabitants by their great Diligence and Activity immediately repaired them, and by that Means prevented the Ruin of the Country. But notwithſtanding their Vigilance, the Waters roſe above the Level of the Dykes, and overflowed the Country, carrying away with the Torrent, Houſes, Cattle, Furniture, &c. and ſome Perſons have periſhed. The Fiſhing-Towns have alſo ſuffered greatly by the Loſs of their Boats. By the moſt exact Enquiries it has been found, that the Riſe of the Waters was at this Time eight Inches higher than in the Year 1682, and two Inches higher than they were in the Year 1717. Workmen are employed in repairing the Damages; and the Communication between Harlem and Amſterdam, which had been interrupted, is now open.
